

CTC & G

Connecticut Cottages and Gardens

COTTAGESGARDENS.COM | JANUARY 2015

CONNECTICUT COTTAGES & GARDENS | JANUARY 2015

Kitchens

THE WARM SIDE
OF WHITE

COTTAGESGARDENS.COM

A NEGLECTED VICTORIAN
 GETS DRESSED FOR A NEW DECADE, TAKING ON A YOUTHFUL LOOK FOR A GROWING FAMILY

BY JAMIE MARSHALL | PHOTOGRAPHY BY TRIA GIOVAN

Time & Space Continuum

WHEN IT WAS TIME for one Fairfield County couple to buy a bigger home to accommodate their growing family, they set their sights on a 19th-century Victorian with good bones. That was important to them, because they were more interested in renovating the existing structure than starting from scratch. “We love old houses,” says the wife. “And we could never imagine tearing one down.” Originally built in the 1860s, the house had undergone multiple renovations and expansions over the years—and it showed. “It was a shell of its former self,” says McKee (Mac) Patterson, whose firm, Austin Patterson Disston Architects spearheaded the transformation.

The first order of business was removing a 1970s addition from the back and a badly done porte-cochère that hid the classic front porch. “Once that was gone, you could see the building,” he says. “The only thing that hadn’t been beaten on was the front staircase. The rest we stripped down to the studs.”

The goal was to restore the house’s graceful lines, while simultaneously adding complementary spaces to meet the needs of an active family. “We wanted a house that we fit in, but wasn’t so huge that we never saw anyone,” says the wife.

For the more formal rooms, Patterson’s improved floor plan took advantage of existing spaces. A former parlor is now a wood-paneled billiards room. The dining room regained its original shape; it is now

Kitchen Magic (ABOVE) Vaughan fixtures hang above the island, which is topped with a Petit Granite corduroy-edged French limestone from ABC Worldwide Stone. The custom stainless steel hood is through Danbury Sheet Metal.

Morning Glory (OPPOSITE) In the breakfast room, a repurposed copper lantern hangs above the wood table, and CB2 counter stools add a modern touch. The linen wall panels and window seat cushion are through O’Neil Anderson Upholstery; throw pillows are from Arnitex and Designway. See Resources.

To add visual and textural punch, the designer incorporated a mix of metals, fabrics and accessories connected to the living room through matching portals. “During the demolition, we discovered they’d been there at one time,” says the architect. “We made these tall and skinny to make it feel very vertical.”

A Warm Welcome (OPPOSITE PAGE) In the foyer, the painted floor leads to the family room, where bottles unearthed from the excavation are displayed. A Turabian & Sariyan sisal covers the stairs. The glass ceiling lanterns are from the Fashion Light Center. The metal console is from Saladino Furniture. Vintage botanical prints are from the George Glazer Gallery. High Style (ABOVE) The living room coffee table is through Century Furniture; the sconces are from Zoffany. Cozy Quarters (BELOW) The den's custom sofa sports a velvet through Lee Jofa; the owner's game table chairs were redone in a Brunschwig & Fils fabric, the carved limestone fireplace and metal surround are from Chesney's of London; the bronze sconces and the light over the game table are from Objet Insolite. The Michael Smith leather club chair is through John Rosselli. See Resources.

A new addition in the back includes an open kitchen, breakfast and family room. There are five bedrooms on the second floor, including a reconfigured master, and two bedrooms and an office on the third floor. Throughout, Patterson incorporated custom millwork and Victorian-era detailing, which changes slightly from room to room. “It gives each one a different feel,” he says. “Then, as you move from the front rooms to the back, you keep the same vernacular, but you take it down a step.”

When it came time for the interiors, the homeowners called upon the design expertise of Jane Capellini. “I wanted to create a comfortable, timeless home that bridged the historical structure and the client’s youthful lifestyle,” she says. To that end, Capellini chose a calm, but sophisticated palette—gray, beige, cream and khaki—then introduced pops of color. And not just any color: “The client loves green, orange and purple,” says the designer.

High on the priority list was making every room kid and dog friendly. Equally important, the homeowners wanted to reuse the lighting fixtures—some original and some added over the years. “We spent months and months just on the lighting alone,” Capellini says.

To add visual and textural punch, she incorporated a mix of metals, fabrics and accessories throughout the home: pewter and polished nickel, grasscloth and linen, leather and bamboo, antique velvet and vinyl. “I believe the design of a space is all about layers,” she says. “Details are essential to keeping it intriguing and not cookie cutter.” In the living room, the client’s own lime-green sofa inspired the elegant but playful tone; custom club chairs are covered in green with a wide stripe; the silk cream draperies are trimmed with little green glass beads and bells. A pink vintage over-dyed rug in the dining room anchors a traditional table and chairs. The family room’s bamboo Roman blinds and stools offer a modern twist on a Victorian staple.

In the light-filled breakfast room, Capellini created a custom tack board for the children’s artwork. Comprised of geometric linen squares, it hangs to the right of the table, and it is one of the wife’s favorite details. “People comment on it all the time,” she says. “The whole bulletin board makes it feel like a family home, rather than just another designed house.”

Divine Details (ABOVE, LEFT AND RIGHT) In the billiards room, chairs from Century Furniture are covered in a Robert Allen cashmina. The light over the game table is by Visual Comfort. Embroidered linen shades are from Zimmer+Rohde; linen wall paneling is through John Rosselli. In the dining room, vintage Lucite lamps through 1st Dibs top a Robert Allen sideboard. The chandelier is from Rue Faubourg St. Honore; the dining chairs are through Safavieh.

Easy Living (OPPOSITE PAGE) New custom millwork defines the family room and bamboo shades from Handy Andy. Linen drapery is Nina Campbell through Osborne & Little and the oversized coffee table is from Edward Ferrell + Lewis Mittman. The bamboo ottomans are covered in a Holly Hunt cowhide; the Lollipop chandelier adds a whimsical touch. See Resources.